For the period of 2021 - 2030, leading companies in Vietnam who have targeted becoming Fortune Global 500 should inevitably try their best to join Global Lighthouse Network founded by the World Economic Forum (WEF) and McKinsey in 2018.

WEF Global Lighthouse Network, from 16 founding member in 2018 increased to 90 member in 2021, is a growing community of organizations setting the trend of 4.0 technologies across the value chain to drive productivity growth, improve resilience and deliver environment sustainability simultaneously.

Lifelong learning and learning in the flow of work are both positioned as the typical practice of 4.0 era, a norm of WEF Global Lighthouse Network's supply chain. That is always one of the biggest challenges for individuals and organizations of all kinds.

Definitely, in organizations leaders should become a role model in terms of relentless learning. And concurrently, solutions should be specially prepared for middle and senior management who can not catch up with 4.0 learning requirements.

WHO'S WHO

The Carnegie Foundation for the Advancement of Teaching (CFAT) is a U.S.-based education policy and research center founded by Andrew Carnegie in 1905. Among its most notable accomplishments are the development of the Teachers Insurance and Annuity Association (TIAA), the Flexner Report on medical education and the Carnegie Classification of Institutions of Higher Education.

Andrew Carnegie (1835 - 1919), an American billionaire, once the third world wealthiest, gave away 90% of his fortune (about $5.2 billions in 2020) to philanthropic works, especially in the field of education.
